about the author

Born with wanderlust, forever living in a fantasy world, S. L. Gore escaped the prairies of Kansas to follow the yellow brick road on an odyssey that took her to Europe, Africa, Latin America and the Middle East.

Starting with a one way ticket to Iceland, she returned with a Viking husband, an art degree and speaking five languages.

A love of travel, classical history, languages, mysticism, food, shopping and romance led Gore to create the novels of the Red Mirror Series: The Red Mirror, The Emerald Tablet and The Black Scroll.

As a self-challenge to test her range, Gore re-cast the story of Isis of The Red Mirror in two more versions: Isis Erotica and a sanitized PG-rated version, Isis BeachRead. Her latest book, titled Lovers of Isis, is a steamy, intense collection of Red Mirror Vignettes.

Her non-fiction publications include the self-help manual Sex and the Zen of Shopping: How to Live Rich by Shopping Smart and memoir contributions to three Life Choices anthologies.

Expect a cookbook of Gore's own recipes plus those of talented, food-loving friends from around the globe. You can find samples from time to time on her blog.

The joyously married Nielsens have a grown daughter and a son and divide their time between a California beach house and a Las Vegas condo.
